ARRIVAL OF COOLIES .- The British bark The tis, Capt. Cass, returned to this port a few days since from Amoy, China, with a cargo of Coolies most of whom were contracted for by planters, and others, at the islands.

The subject of cheap labor is one which has for a considerable period engaged the attention of planters here, as an indispensable requisite to successful competition with Manila and China, in the production of sugar and coffee. The scarcity of native laborers, owing, in part, to the fact that a large number of the working men are now holders of land in fee simple, and also to the fact that the native race is diminishing in number from year to year, induced those engaged in agriculture to make the experiment of introducing from overflowing China a class of laborers which, it was believed, would combine good service with economy. The first attempt, made something more than a year ago, having failed, Capt. Cass was engaged, in August last, to convey hither some 180, under special contract for their passage and advanced wages; and it is in fulfilment of this engagement that he has brought the first coolies ever introduced into this kingdom as laborers.

The experiment to be thus tried, is one of considerable moment to the islands, and we are glad to see it tested. Thus far, we believe, no very serious obstacles have been met with. The coolies annum, in addition to their passage, food, clothing, and house. An advance of six dollars each was made them in China, to be refunded in small instalments out of the wages of the men, after their cover up the deficiency. On the other hand the acarrival. The passage was accomplished, with the cused was the first to make known his deficiency, loss of but four or five men, in 55 days, and the greater part have been delivered over to the persons who engaged them. The whole thing seems Capt. Cass, and others engaged in the enterprise.

But their presence here imposes a weighty obligation upon those who have their immediate oversight. They are idolaters, and should be instructed in a knowledge of the true God .excite the sympathy and compassion of those who hope that their introduction here may prove, not only serviceable to the islands, but also to themselves; and that they have exchanged want and oppression, for a comfortable home, and the protection of a government and people actuated by Christian principles.

NINETY-NINE DAYS FROM BOSTON !- The splendid Clipper Ship R. B. Forbes, Capt. Donne, instant, in 99 days from Boston. Through the politeness of Capt. D, we have had a glance at the log-book, and noted the following particulars in regard to the passage.

The Forbes is of 756 tons burden, and is owned by Messrs. Peirce and Hunnewell of Boston. She took her departure on the 27th of Sept., but for the first fortnight made little progress on her voyat 10 o'clock, A. M. 57 days from Boston.

Her voyage from land to land was 95 days, and from port to port, 99, which is the quickest run on rehave arrived here in 85 days, which the ship is able 14 1-2 knots on several occasions, and on the 20th of Dec. made 312 miles, -an average of 13 miles for the whole 24 hours; and in three consecutive days accomplished 900 miles,-or 12 1-2 miles an hour for the whole time.

Capt. Doane expresses the highest degree of satisfaction in the ship, in every respect; and by this, her first voyage, she has proved herself worthy of a place high up in the catalogue of new Clippers, of which the United States is sending out such a magnificent fleet to astonish the world.

If the voyage can be made in 100 days, or less, with any degree of certainty, it will assuredly prove the most comfortable route to these Islands, as well as the cheapest. Many persons returning to the Atlantic from this quarter, have had their enjoyment there more or less taken with them from California and Panama; while others, returning thence, have suffered to an equal degree here, and have lost more time in recovering from disease induced by the peculiar land of promise. exposures of the Panama route, than they have gained by the increased expedition of Steam Navigation over that of sailing vessels. It is fair to conclude, therefore, that first class clippers will find employment between Boston and these Islands and also that the drended Cape Horn will lose much of its terror, when such passages as that of

By the bark Thetis, Capt. Cass, a variety of new lants have been received from China by R. C. Janion, Esq., among which are Pomelas, fingered Citrons, Wongpees, Lungans, Mandarin Oranges, Cumquats, Camelias, Peach plants, Lichees, &c. Some of the above arrived in good condition, but many of them died on the passage.

Business at the Islands.—Our readers out R. B. Forbes, a Vignette and Seal, designed by one of the kingdom, doubtless look with some degree of the former secretaries of the Society, and sent of interest to the state of trade at these islands, and to the United States by Rev. S. C. Damon, of which correct information only should therefore be sent abroad. To speak favorably of Honolulu as a mar ket, and thus induce shipments that would mee with loss to shippers, would be doing injustice, both to such persons and to the islands themselves. A a market for merchandise, these islands present but a limited field. The population to consume small,-not equaling many of the 3rd class cities in the United States and other countries. Their ability to purchase, also, is limited,—depending entirely upon the demand for the productions raised from the soil. When this demand is active, at remunerating rates, the circulation of money is greatly increased, and trade becomes brisk. The natives do not hoard, but spend their money as freely as they obtain it. They are constantly striving to erect better houses, and to procure furniture and all the other appliances of civilization and comfort about them; to say nothing of their taste for silks, satins and other expensive luxuries It will be readily perceived that when no demand exists for export, the circulation of money is instantly diminished, and trade confined to the supply of shipping and domestic consumption. This, course, immediately affects business, in all branches; and the merchant, perhaps, first of all feels its influence. He cannot, in a few days, contract his operations, countermand his orders, recall his advices to his foreign correspondents, and bring his business into that narrow compass which the It appeared in evidence that the accused, who was exigency may demand. I fully agree with him, that the office of the clergyman is more important in its bearings on the well being of the community than any office in the gift of the state. And I am as far as possible from wishing to see Ministers of the Gospel leaving their high calling to mingle in secular politics. But I do not believe the state has any right to in- kekahi mau konohiki i na ia i oleloia malalo nei. terfere in the matter. I know it is a favorite practice with some to ascribe to the clerical office Planders, Mrs. Caroling Canoling Can a mysterious sacredness, as though some wonderful virtue had come down to this office in lineal decent from the Apostles. But such notions savor more of the Romish and Puseyite cloister than of the New Testament. The religion which our Saviour inculcated was not to be confined to the office bearers of the church. They are not authorized to act as proxy for the rest of the world. The religion of the New Testament is a practical, personal religion, designed for all classes and for

Shall the Hawaiian Government look to New England as a pattern in this matter, or to the old world, and the Mexican and South American Republics?

We venture to say, that the article in question, as a political enactment, would meet with no enlightened advocate in the Northern States of the Union, who was not, at heart, an enemy to the gospel of Christ. Such men are to be met with every where. They would not only exclude the minis ters of Christ, but the religion of Christ, from any influence in the counsels of state. It is this spirit induced partly by the evils of church establishments in the old world, which has led to the adoption of the article in question in some of the States. It is the same spirit, which is ready to raise the alarm of Church and State, whenever religion seems to tion. But the states are gradually wiping this blo from their statute books, and leaving the clerical profession to the same political rights as other professions. The most enlightened statesmen are begiming to feel, that the clergy of the different de nominations are no less patriotic and trust worthy than any other citizens; and that the good sens and piety of the churches may be safely left to regulate this matter, without being trammeled by state constitutions.

Prof. Haddock of Hanover, N. H. present minister to Spain, and others less distinguished.

Shall the Hawaiian nation, then, which, according to Mr. Wyllie's own showing, owes so much to the christian religion, introduce this invidious and useless article into its constitution? Some no doubt, may be found to support such an article in order to vent their spleen against evangelical religion and its constituted teachers; but we think better things of Mr. Wyllie. On the 7th inst., at the U. S. hospital, Charles ears. Mr. C. arrived rece every day life. It requires purity of heart and life too ill to recover.

At sea, on board the ship R. B. Forbes, Kaunana of these islands. in the statesman and the peasant, as well as in him

Force, aged 52 years. Mr. P. was a passenger in the Forte and was buried at sea, in lat. 37° 52, South, long. 51° 20' E

Death came, and loosed with gentle hand The spirit's hold on clay; And bore it to that distant land, To which Faith points the way.

Once all lay hid in gloomy night,
Nor guide, nor hope was given;
Now beams the Cross and by its light
We see the path to Heaven.

But yesterday, our brother lay, Sad, sick, and suffering here, We watched with grief life's parting ray, And gave the pitying tear

Now, bow we to the high command Nor would we break his sleep: His spirit to a Father's hand, His body to the deep. Ship R. B. Forbes, at sea. Nov. 12, 1851.
